U.S. Justice Department updates guide to federal equitable sharing program

For the first time since 1994, the United States Department of Justice Asset Forfeiture and Money Laundering Section has issued an updated Guide to Equitable Sharing for State and Local Law Enforcement Agencies. The new document offers updated guidance and information on the national asset forfeiture program, which turns 25 years-old this year. The document includes an introduction by AFMLS chief Richard Weber (left) and a wealth of new information for state and local asset forfeiture programs. Click here to read about the changes and download the guide.

Nigeria's former top corruption cop tells AFW how forfeiting assets cost him his job

Seizing and forfeiting the assets of criminals is only supposed to hurt the bad guys, but in some parts of the world, running an aggressive asset forfeiture program can be a thankless -- and even life-threatening -- endeavor. In a face-to-face interview with AssetForfeitureWatch.com reporter Mary Spicuzza, the former head of the Nigerian Economic and Financial Crimes Commission Nuhu Ribadu (left) explains how, after years of successfully recovering the proceeds of government corruption, he found himself out of a job, hounded by government security services, and ultimately driven from the country. He discusses his work and the challenges of fighting corruption in a country where the rule of law is tenuous at best.

Intriago's Insights: Creating a credentialing association for asset forfeiture professionals

At this week's Asset Forfeiture 2009 Global Conference, AssetForfeitureWatch.com publisher Charles A. Intriago will announce the formation of the world's first credentialing association for professionals working in the field of asset forfeiture: The Association of Certified Asset Forfeiture Specialists. "Its goal," writes Intriago, "is to enhance the expertise, the ethical policies and operations, and the professionalism of people who work in the asset forfeiture field. Building ethical behavior into the processes and procedures of an asset forfeiture program is the only way to maintain public support and avoid scandal, says AssetForfeitureWatch.com editorial board member Mike Perez (left) in the second of a series of articles. Currently a senior manager at Grant Thornton, LLP, Perez managed the Department of Justice Assets Forfeiture Fund for 20 years, and was founder and director of the Justice Department's Asset Forfeiture Management Staff until his retirement in 2007. He was a strong advocate for ethical practices, professional property management, and aggressive cost management in the federal asset forfeiture program. His suggestions could save your department's asset forfeiture program.

Tom- today can you show a detail of what this $340.52 was spent on and how it was tied to the 1505-funded PODs (either has to directly repair/ support a 1505-funded POD or provide service/ repair to 1505-funded PODs in proportion to the percentage share that these PODs depend upon the equipment/ function repaired by these funds).

Give me or Dan a call to discuss. Should be fairly simple.

Thanks
Jonathan

Dan,

See attached. The POD repair charges are circled and which total $340.52 for 2011. In 2010, OCD set up $205,000 for the purchase of PODS and Plate Readers. To date, we show nothing spent on this project.

Hi Jonathan,

Attached is the report, which has the funding for the POD cameras. Look at the Active General Projects spreadsheet. Towards the bottom are the 1505 funding sources for POD cameras. There is $44,650.00 remaining for installation of 30 PODs and $80,402.00 remaining for Corporate POD cameras.

Also, I want to bring to your attention, an additional $120,000 has been added to the R-Case Funding line, at the request of Deputy O'Keefe.

I only had an opportunity to update the first spreadsheet (general). Therefore, disregard the other spreadsheets. I will update those as soon as possible and then forward to your attention.

Brian, I know you're on a detail but would someone in your office be able to scan and email me a copy of the To-From I wrote awhile ago for CLEAR 1505 funding reimbursement? This was approx $6,000 in reimbursement that we haven't received yet. I can't find the copy in my files. Email me if any more info is needed.

Thanks!

No. Not ITGB because It is less than $100,000 and not RFP/Sole Source.

It will require an ITSC, which is a 1 page review that requires the approval of Frank Rico at DOit.
